LEGISLATURE IS ASKED TO SEEK FACTS AT O. S. U.

Resolution Introduced To Have Dismissal of Miller Investigated.

HOUSE GETS PROPOSAL

Action Needed Because Vital Issues Are Involved, Author Says.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O June 2—Creation of an investigating committee of five to inquire into the facts concerning the dismissal of Professor Herbert A Miller of the sociology department of Ohio State university was proposed in a resolution prepared by Representative Martin E Blum Republican of Cleveland, for introduction in the house today

Blum's resolution stated that "in fairness" to all concerned in the university controversy the house should appoint a committee to conduct an inquiry and determine the reasons for the failure to renew Professor Miller's contract

The committee under the resolution would have full power to inquire into the situation at Ohio State university and would be required to report either to this general assembly or to the next session in 1933

Blum said he believed an investigation necessary in that charges and statements issued in connection with the controversy "reflect upon such subjects as free speech racial questions compulsory military training and the involving of peaceful relations with a certain foreign imperial power"

The resolution states that the various statements had reflected "upon the high standing of Ohio State university in this state and in other states of the nation"

Blum said he asked the inquiry because 'many citizens desire to know the truth" in the controversy

A protest against Prof Miller's dismissal was voiced later by 68 ministers of 12 denominations in Columbus The protest was filed with the trustees of the university who were called upon to answer a number of questions.

Professor Miller, an internationally known teacher of sociology, was dismissed trustees said because of certain speeches made in India in connection with the Mahatma Gandhi non-violence campaign against British rule and because of complaints of parents of some of his students to his teachings

GASPARRI SEEN AS PEACE NEGOTIATOR

Cardinal Believed To Be Seeking Path for Mussolini and Pope To Agree.

By The Associated Press

ROME, June 2 Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, who as papal secretary of state signed the Lateran treaty in 1929 is believed to have taken a hand in the new crisis in relations between the Vatican and the Italian government which has resulted in dissolution by Premier Mussolini of all the Catholic youth clubs in Italy

It is understood that the cardinal is laying the groundwork for official negotiations to prevent what appears to be a new parting of the ways between the church and the state. He is one of those it is said, who regard the situation as one of the gravest in recent times and threatening both the Lateran treaty and the concordat between Rome and the Holy See

American interests are still involved, for permission extended unofficially yesterday for reopening of playgrounds operated by the American Knights of Columbus has not been approved by the premier Papal Count Edward Hearn, in charge of the playgrounds, already has filed a protest at the American embassy and now he will urge the ambassador to file his own with the Italian government

At noon today the pontiff had received no word from the Italian government in reply to his note of protest regarding the dissolution of the Catholic societies.

Harold Bell Wright, whose novels have given him indisputable rank as one of the most popular authors of the last quarter of a century, apparently improves with passing years, for his latest story, "Exit," which begins in The Star today, is said even to surpass his former works as a soulful portrayal of life's drama. A story of the stage, it expresses in its theme and wording the spirit and personality of the author.

"All the world's a stage; and all the men and women merely players. They have their exits and their entrances," was never more vividly shown than in this love story of two generations.

AUTO LICENSE FEE MEASURE PASSES SENATE

Second Major Bill of New Program Successful by Single Vote.

BOOSTS COST OF TAGS

House Expected To Demand Revision of Act Before Passage There.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O June 2 - The second of the major bills of the joint legislative committee's taxation program that increasing the license fees on automobiles and trucks and removing them from the general property tax duplicate had successfully negotiated the senate today and now is before the house

The automobile bill was accepted by the senate last night after many unsuccessful attempts to change the rates, by a vote of 18 to 13 receiving one more vote than was necessary to pass it The other major program bill, that taxing intangible and tangible property was passed by the senate last week and also is before the house

House Opposition Likely

That both bills will experience opposition in the house and may not be passed there without important changes is anticipated Many house members declare that body will not accept the rates as proposed by either measure The principal fights are expected to be to increase the rates in the intangible bill and lower them in the automobile bill

Rates carried by the automobile bill are $5 $10 $15, $20 and $25 compared to present rates of $4 $6 and $10 both based on horse power Whereas the present law raises approximately $9,000 000 on pleasure automobiles, the rates in the proposed new law will yield approximately $16 000,000

The bill also carries increased rates for trucks based on weight, which is expected to yield about $7 000 000 annually compared with the present yield of about $5 000-000 Both pleasure cars and trucks under the bill are exempted from the general property tax which now amounts to about $4 800 000 annually.

Four attempts were made last night to change the rates on pleasure cars Two amendments were offered to reduce the license tax and levy an additional tax of 15 mills on a valuation basis graded according to age of the car This amendment was finally defeated by a vote of 15 for to 16 against

Senators D J Gunsett, Democrat of Van Wert county, and C J Anderson Republican of Richland county offered amendments making cuts in the fees without imposition of a valuation tax, both of which were defeated

Senators Robe Republican of Tiffin, and Bowers Democrat of Rushsylvania, representing the district that includes Marion both voted against the bill

PRESBYTERIANS END DISPUTES

Vote To Stay in Council, but Hit Birth Control Stand.

STATES ARE CRITICIZED

Commercializing of Divorce Deplored; Educational Plan Outlined.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH Pa, June 2 The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U S A today refused to act on a motion to withdraw from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America for disapproved 'ecclesiastical pronouncements on the subject of birth control

The motion to withdraw from the federal council resulted from a recent report of a council committee approving birth control under certain conditions.

A majority report of the committee on bills and overtures disapproved withdrawal from the federal council, and this report was adopted by the general assembly after some debate A minority report asked the assembly to repudiate the birth control report of the federal council's committee and withdraw from the council

Both the majority and minority members of the bills and overtures committee approved the proposal that the 'general assembly disapprove the ecclesiastical pronouncements' on birth control The proposal was adopted unanimously by the general assembly

Stand Changed

After making it first the target of criticism the assembly yesterday swung solidly behind its commission on marriage which had been driven to revise its original report and agreed with it that "it is doubtful if anything is wrong with marriage today that was not always wrong that 'we are witnessing a resurgence of paganism with Hollywood blazing the way and Nevada prostituting its statehood and pandering to the weaknesses of human nature for 30 pieces of silver that 'among other things the deplorable competition recently noted between the legislature of some states to cheapen and commercialize divorce lead us to conclude that no recommendations as to reforms in divorce statutes would bring about any general improvement," and that "what is needed more than companionate marriage or easy divorce or any other solution that follows the line of least resistance is the establishment in our churches, schools and colleges of fundamental studies in marriage which would teach our boys and girls how to make a success of marriage"

Education Advocated

With these statements the assembly approved suggested courses of education for youth parents and ministers

Declarations of the assemblies of 1926 and 1930 in opposition to compulsory military training were reaffirmed

The "thrill which Knapp had sought six years ago came to him with swift unexpectedness last night at the home where he has been living under the name of Allen Kingsbury Phillips and under that name had married Eleanor Hill of Boston

At first he denied he was Knapp Fingerprint comparisons however led to his admission of his identity and also quickly to his confession

Knapp's account of the events that happened after he left Mitchel field that night in July, 1925, revealed that he slew Panella stole his cab sold it went to Boston and joined the coast guard married a Boston woman moved back to Long Island and served as a coast guardsman and then came to New Jersey

TARIFF RATES UP IN CANADA

Many U. S. Products Affected by Increased Import Duties.

EXPLAINED BY PREMIER

Protection Against High Tariff Competitors Essential, Bennett Says.

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, June 2 -- Increased tariffs were in effect today on 200 commodities, many of which Canada imports in the greatest quantity from the United States

Coal, steel, automobiles, oranges and corn are among the items imported into Canada from the United States upon which Premier R. B Bennett declared increased duties yesterday in his budget speech before parliament

In addition to the schedules, which became effective with their announcement, a duty of 15 cents a pound to become effective July 1 was announced on magazines.

Protection Needed

Canada cannot afford to be unprotected against the competition of countries protected by high tariffs, Premier Bennett said. He added his government stands or falls by its policy of protection to Canadian industry.

Anthracite, which was on the free list, is subjected to a tariff of 40 cents a ton under the new rates Last year Canada imported $28 000 000 worth of this fuel, most of which came from the United States. The rate on bituminous coal was increased from 50 cents to 75 cents a ton

Automobiles are divided into three classes for the purpose of fixing tariff schedules Cars costing $1 200 or less are admitted under the former rate An increase from 27½ per cent to 30 per cent is provided for cars costing more than $1 200 up to $2 100 For cars over $2,100 the rate is increased from 27½ per cent to 40 per cent.

In Three Classes

Canadian tariffs are imposed under three classifications, British preference under which low rates are extended to Great Britain and other members of the British commonwealth intermediate, in which higher rates are imposed on imports from countries with which Canada has trade treaties and the general rate, which is highest and under which American goods are classed

Premier Bennett estimates that the new rates would produce $78,-175 000 in additional revenue.

FALL STILL HOPES TO ESCAPE PRISON TERM

Two Avenues of Freedom Remain Open for Former Cabinet Official.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON June 2 Failing to obtain relief through the supreme court Albert B Fall today had remaining two narrow avenues of escape from a year in prison and a $100 000 fine

The former interior secretary was refused a review by the highest tribunal yesterday of his conviction of accepting a $100 000 bribe from Edward L Doheny wealthy oil man, in leasing government oil lands

If Fall receives a presidential pardon he will be relieved of the entire penalty but if that fails there remains the hope of his friends that the prison will be suspended because of his age and ill health.

At the White House it was said no appeal on behalf of Fall had been received and if one were made it would followw the usual course and be sent to the justice department for recommendations.

Fall's friends found little comfort in that, but the recommendation of the trial judge at the time of his conviction led them to believe his chances for a suspension of sentence good

Justice Hits the trial judge, said then if Fall were to come before him for commitment the jail sentence would not be imposed because of Fall's physical condition.

Few legal formalities remain before the question is settled

Unless the President intervenes, Fall will come to Washington and begin his sentence in the District of Columbia jail.

Fall is the only person convicted of a felony in the series of criminal trials that followed the leasing of naval oil reserves Doheny was acquitted on a charge of giving him the bribe

WALDO HONORS SOLDIER DEAD

Congressman C. E. Mouser Is Speaker at Memorial Services.

More than 3,000 persons heard Congressman Grant E. Mouser deliver the principal address yesterday afternoon at the Waldo Memorial services in Waldo park.

Honoring the memory of soldiers whose lives were given in all of this country's wars, Mouser said that the sacrifices made by these men had taught the country that the day of wars is past, that the toll of war is too tragic. He called upon those present to help the United States become a peaceful Christian country.

The principal address followed a parade from the park to the cemetery where graves of veterans were decorated and where Lincoln's Gettysburg address was recited by Anna Mae Klinger. The parade included patriotic organizations and several bands.

After the parade had returned to the park, the memorial program was given. R. E. Copeland, superintendent of schools, was grand marshal. Music was furnished during the parade and program by the Future Farmers band, the Eagles band of Marion, the Port Clinton American Legion drum corps, the male chorus of the Prospect Baptist church and a mixed quartet of Marion. LEGISLATURE IS ASKED TO SEEK FACTS AT O. S. U.

Resolution Introduced To Have Dismissal of Miller Investigated.

HOUSE GETS PROPOSAL

Action Needed Because Vital Issues Are Involved, Author Says.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 2—Creation of an investigating committee of five to inquire into the facts concerning the dismissal of Professor Herbert A. Miller of the sociology department of Ohio State university was proposed in a resolution prepared by Representative Martin E. Blum, Republican of Cleveland, for introduction in the house today.

Blum's resolution stated that "in fairness" to all concerned in the university controversy, the house should appoint a committee to conduct an inquiry and determine the reasons for the failure to renew Professor Miller's contract.

The committee, under the resolution, would have full power to inquire into the situation at Ohio State university and would be required to report either to this general assembly or to the next session in 1933.

Blum said he believed an investigation necessary in that charges and statements issued in connection with the controversy "reflect upon such subjects as free speech, racial questions, compulsory military training and the involving of peaceful relations with a certain foreign imperial power."

The resolution states that the various statements had reflected "upon the high standing of Ohio State university in this state and in other states of the nation."

Blum said he asked the inquiry because "many citizens desire to know the truth" in the controversy.

A protest against Prof. Miller's dismissal was voiced later by 68 ministers of 12 denominations in Columbus. The protest was filed with the trustees of the university who were called upon to answer a number of questions.

Professor Miller, an internationally known teacher of sociology, was dismissed, trustees said, because of certain speeches made in India in connection with the Mahatma Gandhi non-violence campaign against British rule and because of complaints of parents of some of his students to his teachings.

By International News Service

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 2—Spurred by what they declared were five successful booze raids, authorities of Belmont county today launched an investigation into charges of Flushing, O., school board members that high school banquets at Lafferty, a coal mining village, were gay scenes of liquor revelries.

Orders were issued by officials throughout the district to "mop up," and Sheriff Howard A. Duff indicated today that he will lead raids soon on several suspected bootleg headquarters that have allegedly been supplying high school students with liquor.

Five reputed "joints" were raided by officials following complaints made to members of the Flushing board of education that high school parties were in reality liquor brawls.

AUTHOR VICTIM OF OWN BURGLAR TRAP

Shotgun Explodes as Dr. R. H. Bell Opens Door of Pennsylvania Summer Home.

By The Associated Press

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., June 2—The death of Dr. Raley Husted Bell, apparently a victim of his own burglar trap, was under investigation today.

The body of the alienist, naturalist and author was found at Sycamore lodge, his summer home. There was a gunshot wound in the chest. A shotgun set on a closet floor with a wire to the door apparently had been discharged, killing Dr. Bell almost instantly. Death occurred Friday.

The body was discovered by Ollie Major, caretaker of the home. Dr. John J. Sweeney, county coroner, issued a certificate of accidental death and said there were no indications of foul play. State troopers today however, were looking into the case.

Some years ago, Dr. Bell became incensed at what he termed "vandal motorists" who drove over the highways and pulled up flowers and shrubs. He vowed he would put an end to the practice and stretched barbed wire over lanes. He rigged up traps in hidden places and included his own grounds in the elaborate plans.

Later he fixed shotguns about the houses and outbuildings so that they would be discharged if any intruder attempted to gain entrance. The gun with which he was killed was wired to the floor at an angle which would put the full charge squarely in the chest of an intruder.

Among his writings are "The Religion of Beauty," published in 1911, "Words of the Wood," a collection of poems published in 1906 and "Woman from Bondage to Freedom," 1917.

RICH DOCTOR FOUND SLAIN

Murder of Brooklyn Specialist Has Setting of Mystery Drama.

DOORS, WINDOWS LOCKED

Attacked by Some One He Knew and Did Not Fear, Police Believe.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, June 2—Bludgeoned, strangled, stabbed, Dr. George E. Deely, well-known Brooklyn specialist, was found murdered in his bedroom today. It was a real murder mystery.

There were no windows open. The door was locked, apparently from the inside. No one in the house heard any disturbance.

There were many evidences of a struggle in the luxurious apartment. Curtains were jerked from the windows. Tables, chairs and other furniture were overturned.

The doctor's body was found today by the wife of the caretaker. In gay colored pajamas, it lay on a costly oriental rug in the bedroom. A knob-topped post wrench, ed from the foot of the doctor's bed lay beside the body. It was apparently the weapon which broke the physician's skull.

He had apparently started to go to bed when it happened, for the bed covers, still folded, lay on the floor beside the bed.

Hunt Two Servants

Declaring the killing to be a murder for revenge, Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney broadcast a general alarm for the apprehension of two Filipino servants, one of whom was picked up for questioning a short time later.

Mulrooney made it plain that the man Senika Simplicio, a chauffeur and chef, was not charged with the crime but was merely taken into custody for questioning.

The crime occurred in a three-story Brownstone house on a quiet, fashionable street on Columbia Heights.

Dr. Deely apparently had been attacked by some one he knew and did not fear, police said.

Arthur Lindars and his wife, Norma, servants, slept on the floor above the doctor. They said they slept through the night undisturbed.

Chair Overturned

Near the bed on which his body was found, was an overturned rocking chair. Police believed he was sitting in the rocking chair when he was attacked.

The Lindars had been in Dr. Deeley's employ less than a week. They retired early last night to their room on the top floor, leaving the doctor, they thought, in his living room on the second floor.

They said they did not hear any

GASPARRI SEEN AS PEACE NEGOTIATOR

Cardinal Believed To Be Seeking Path for Mussolini and Pope To Agree.

By The Associated Press

ROME, June 2—Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, who as papal secretary of state signed the Lateran treaty in 1929, is believed to have taken a hand in the new crisis in relations between the Vatican and the Italian government which has resulted in dissolution by Premier Mussolini of all the Catholic youth clubs in Italy.

It is understood that the cardinal is laying the groundwork for official negotiations to prevent what appears to be a new parting of the ways between the church and the state. He is one of those, it is said, who regard the situation as one of the gravest in recent times and threatening both the Latern treaty and the concordat between Rome and the Holy See.

American interests are still involved, for permission extended unofficially yesterday for reopening of playgrounds operated by the merican Knights of Columbus has not been approved by the premier. Papal Count Edward Hearn, in charge of the playgrounds, already has filed a protest at the American embassy and now he will urge the ambassador to file his own with the Italian government.

At noon today the pontiff had received no word from the Italian government in reply to his note of protest regarding the dissolution of the Catholic societies.

New Story Begins Today

Harold Bell Wright, whose novels have given him indisputable rank as one of the most popular authors of the last quarter of a century, apparently improves with passing years, for his latest story, "Exit," which begins in The Star today, is said even to surpass his former works as a soulful portrayal of life's drama. A story of the stage, it expresses in its theme and wording the spirit and personality of the author.

"All the world's a stage; and all the men and women merely players. They have their exits and their entrances," was never more vividly shown than in this love story of two generations.

AUTO LICENSE FEE MEASURE PASSES SENATE

Second Major Bill of New Program Successful by Single Vote.

BOOSTS COST OF TAGS

House Expected To Demand Revision of Act Before Passage There.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 2—The second of the major bills of the joint legislative committee's taxation program, that increasing the license fees on automobiles and trucks and removing them from the general property tax duplicate, had successfully negotiated the senate today and now is before the house.

The automobile bill was accepted by the senate last night after many unsuccessful attempts to change the rates, by a vote of 18 to 13, receiving one more vote than was necessary to pass it. The other major program bill, that taxing intangible and tangible property, was passed by the senate last week and also is before the house.

House Opposition Likely

That both bills will experience opposition in the house and may not be passed there without important changes is anticipated. Many house members declare that body will not accept the rates as proposed by either measure. The principal fights are expected to be to increase the rates in the intangible bill and lower them in the automobile bill.

Rates carried by the automobile bill are $5, $10, $15, $20 and $25 compared to present rates of $4, $6 and $10, both based on horsepower. Whereas the present law raises approximately $8,000,000 on pleasure automobiles, the rates in the proposed new law will yield approximately $16,000,000.

The bill also carries increased rates for trucks, based on weight, which is expected to yield about $7,000,000 annually, compared with the present yield of about $5,000,000. Both pleasure cars and trucks under the bill are exempted from the general property tax which now amounts to about $4,800,000 annually.

Four attempts were made last night to change the rates on pleasure cars. Two amendments were offered to reduce the license tax and levy an additional tax of 15 mills on a valuation basis graded according to age of the car. This amendment was finally defeated by a vote of 15 for to 16 against.

Senators D. J. Gunsett, Democrat, of Van Wert county, and C. J. Anderson, Republican of Richland county, offered amendments making cuts in the fees without imposition of a valuation tax, both of which were defeated.

Senators Rohr, Republican of Tiffin, and Bower, Democrat, of Rushsylvania, representing the district that includes Marion, both voted against the bill.

LOANS DISCONTINUE HALF HOLIDAY PLAN

Local Companies Will Remain Open Wednesday Afternoons This Summer.

Marion building and loan companies will not observe Wednesday afternoon as a half holiday this summer, but will continue their regular schedule of business hours six days a week.

In previous years it has been the custom for these institutions to close at noon each Wednesday in summer months. A change in plans was made to accommodate merchants and other business men, as a large number of stores will not observe the half holiday this year.

Marion banks have shortened the summer period in which Wednesday afternoon closing will be in effect. Present plans are for the banks to observe the half holiday only during July and August instead of the usual five-month period.

Three merchants will begin observance of the half holiday next Wednesday.

PRESBYTERIANS END DISPUTES

Vote To Stay in Council, but Hit Birth Control Stand.

STATES ARE CRITICIZED

Commercializing of Divorce Deplored; Educational Plan Outlined.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 2—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. today refused to act on a motion to withdraw from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, but disapproved "ecclesiastical pronouncements" on the subject of birth control.

The motion to withdraw from the federal council resulted from a recent report of a council committee approving birth control under certain conditions.

A majority report of the committee on bills and overtures disapproved withdrawal from the federal council, and this report was adopted by the general assembly after some debate. A minority report asked the assembly to repudiate the birth control report of the federal council's committee and withdraw from the council.

Both the majority and minority members of the bills and overtures committee approved the proposal that the "general assembly disapprove the ecclesiastical pronouncements" on birth control. The proposal was adopted unanimously by the general assembly.

Stand Changed

After making it first the target of criticism, the assembly yesterday swung solidly behind its commission on marriage, which had been driven to revise its original report and agreed with it that "it is doubtful if anything is wrong with marriage today that was not always wrong," that "we are witnessing a retrogression of paganism with Hollywood blazing the way and Nevada prostituting its statehood and pandering to the weaknesses of human nature for 30 pieces of silver," that "among other things, the deplorable competition recently noted between the legislature of some states to cheapen and commercialize divorce lead us to conclude that no recommendations as to reforms in divorce statutes would bring about any general improvement," and that "what is needed more than companionate marriage or easy divorce or any other solution that follows the line of least resistance is the establishment in our churches, schools, and colleges of fundamental studies in marriage, which would teach our boys and girls how to make a success of marriage."

Education Advocated

With these statements, the assembly approved suggested courses of education for youth, parents and ministers.

Declarations of the assemblies of 1926 and 1930 in opposition to compulsory military training were reaffirmed.

PROTEST OVERRULED

Schneider Declared Winner of Memorial Day Auto Race.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, June 2—Louis Schneider's winning race car crossed the finish line 59 seconds ahead of that driven by Fred Frame of Los Angeles, in the 500-mile race here last Saturday, the contest board of the American Automobile Association ruled last night in disallowing the protest of Harry Hartz, also of Los Angeles, owner of the entry driven by Frame.

Ruling out another protest, the board said official timers' records showed Ralph Hepburn of Los Angeles, nosed out Louis Meyer of South Gate, Calif., for third place by sixteen seconds.

At a banquet last night, drivers were awarded their prizes. Schneider received $29,500 in cash and several trophies. Frame $12,650 and Hepburn $6,350.

MAN CAUGHT AFTER 6-YEAR HUNT HELD AS "THRILL SLAYER"

Philip Knapp, Former Army Air Corps Private, Found Living Under Assumed Name, Confesses Killing Near Camp Mills.

FINGERPRINT TRAIL LEADS TO CAPTURE

By The Associated Press

WEST ORANGE, N. J., June 2—The six year-old "thrill murder" of Louis Panella, a cab driver, near Camp Mills, Mineola, L. I., has been solved, police announced today by the arrest and confession of Philip Knox Knapp, member of a well-to-do Syracuse, N. Y., family.

"I shot him through the back of the head," the confession said. "I had decided I was fed up on the air service (Knapp was in the first observation squadron stationed at Mitchel field) and that the best thing to do was to rob the driver and take his cab."

"Thrill" Unexpected

The "thrill" which Knapp had sought six years ago came to him with swift unexpectedness last night at the home where he has been living under the name of Allen Kingsbury Phillips and under that name had married Eleanor Hill of Boston.

At first he denied he was Knapp. Fingerprint comparisons, however, led to his admission of his identity and subsequently to his confession.

Knapp's account of the events that happened after he left Mitchel field that night in July, 1925, related that he slew Panella, stole his cab, sold it, went to Boston and joined the coast guard; married a Boston woman, moved back to Long Island and served as a coast guardsman; and then came to New Jersey.

His wife, he said, did not know his true identity or his past.

State troopers and detectives had traced him to West Orange after a long check up of government fingerprint records. He had been in the coast guard for four years.

Body Found Buried

Search for Knapp started after the body of Panella was found July 4, 1925, in a shallow pit near Camp Mills, buried under a pile of tin cans and rubbish. He had been shot through the head with a .45 calibre pistol, the type usually used in the army.

Knapp, then a private in the army air corps, failed to return to camp, and was listed as a deserter.

Psychiatrists, who were called in to study Knapp's record, said the motive was for a super-thrill.

New York detectives discovered Panella's taxi cab in a used-car salesroom and traced it to Knapp, but he had disappeared.

In checking coast guards records, police found finger prints listed for Allen K. Phillips matching those of Knapp.

TARIFF RATES UP IN CANADA

Many U. S. Products Affected by Increased Import Duties.

EXPLAINED BY PREMIER

Protection Against High Tariff Competitors Essential, Bennett Says.

By The Associated Press

OTTAWA, June 2—Increased tariffs were in effect today on 200 commodities, many of which Canada imports in the greatest quantity from the United States.

Coal, steel, automobiles, oranges and corn are among the items imported into Canada from the United States upon which Premier R. B. Bennett declared increased duties yesterday in his budget speech before parliament.

In addition to the schedules, which became effective with their announcement, a duty of 15 cents a pound to become effective July 1 was announced on magazines.

Protection Needed

Canada cannot afford to be unprotected against the competition of countries protected by high tariffs, Premier Bennett said. He added his government stands or falls by its policy of protection to Canadian industry.

Anthracite, which was on the free list, is subjected to a tariff of 40 cents a ton under the new rates. Last year Canada imported $28,000,000 worth of this fuel, most of which came from the United States. The rate on bituminous coal was increased from 50 cents to 75 cents a ton.

Automobiles are divided into three classes for the purpose of fixing tariff schedules. Cars costing $1,200 or less are admitted under the former rate. An increase from 27½ per cent to 30 per cent is provided for cars costing more than $1,200 up to $2,100. For cars over $2,100 the rate is increased from 27½ per cent to 40 per cent.

In Three Classes

Canadian tariffs are imposed under three classifications, British preference, under which low rates are extended to Great Britain and other members of the British commonwealth, intermediate, in which higher rates are imposed on imports from countries with which Canada has trade treaties and the general rate, which is highest and under which American goods are classed.

Premier Bennett estimates that the new rates would produce $78,175,000 in additional revenue.

FALL STILL HOPES TO ESCAPE PRISON TERM

Two Avenues of Freedom Remain Open for Former Cabinet Official.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 2—Failing to obtain relief through the supreme court, Albert B. Fall today had remaining two narrow avenues of escape from a year in prison and a $100,000 fine.

The former interior secretary was refused a review by the highest tribunal yesterday of his conviction of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, in leasing government oil lands.

If Fall receives a presidential pardon, he will be relieved of the entire penalty, but if that fails there remains the hope of his friends that the prison will be suspended because of his age and ill health.

At the White House it was said no appeal on behalf of Fall had been received and if one were made it would followw the usual course and be sent to the justice department for recommendations.

Fall's friends found little comfort in that, but the recommendation of the trial judge at the time of his conviction led them to believe his chances for a suspension of sentence good.

Justice Hitz, the trial judge, said then if Fall were to come before him for commitment the jail sentence would not be imposed because of Fall's physical condition.

Few legal formalities remain before the question is settled.

Unless the President intervenes, Fall will come to Washington and begin his sentence in the District of Columbia jail.

Fall is the only person convicted of a felony in the series of criminal trials that followed the leasing of naval oil reserves. Doheny was acquitted on a charge of giving him the bribe.

Unlucky Tex

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., June 2—Poor Texas Guinan and her gang were just unfortunate. She happened to hit France right after the American mayors, so France says "one show troop at a time is enough for us."

Give Tex credit. She wouldn't have delivered a Chamber of Commerce speech at the Unknown Soldier's tomb.

But there is not much sympathy for Tex. Anybody that makes a living off "suckers" should never have to leave this country in a professional capacity. Yours,

PINCHOT HITS AT UTILITIES

Franklin D. Roosevelt Also Airs Business Views at Governors' Conference.

By The Associated Press

FRENCH LICK, Ind., June 2—Governors Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania were headliners of the annual governor's conference here today.

The Pennsylvanian chose to deliver a warning against domination by public utilities in political affairs. He said this is a grave danger to government by the people.

Governor Roosevelt, speaking on land utilization and state planning, told the state executives that in time of booming industry "we can overlook the defects of organization and danger signals from industry and agriculture, but in times such as the present, these symptoms attain new importance and show us the urgency of the new problems we have to face."

Views of Pinchot

"The railroads, pipe lines, telegraph, telephone and radio services, airships, busses and trucks are lawfully subject to federal control when engaged in interstate business," Governor Pinchot said. "The water power development of our streams is covered by the federal power act.

"But the interstate transmission of electric power is still in a twilight zone in which the states are unable to assume control, while the federal power, although it has been asserted, has not yet been exercised. Interstate commerce in electric current is still outside of either state or federal control."

Governor Pinchot expressed the conviction that the question of public utilities cannot be settled by individual states acting alone; that the problem is essentially national in character and can be solved only under the leadership and by the action of the nation itself, supported by the coordinate action of the individual states.

"It is not enough to talk about being of good cheer," declared Governor Roosevelt. "A new economic social balance calls for positive leadership and definite experiments which have not hitherto been tried.

"More and more, those who are the victims of dislocations and defects of our social and economic life are beginning to ask respectfully but insistently of us who are in positions of public responsibility why government cannot and should not act to protect its citizens from disaster. I think the question demands an answer and that the ultimate answer is that government, both state and national must accept the responsibility of doing what it can do soundly with considered forethought, and along definitely constructive, not passive lines."

DOCTOR VICTIM OF MYSTERY MURDER

Fiction Story Setting Provided in Slaying of Brooklyn Specialist.

sound in the night, although there were evidences that Dr. Deeley had struggled with his assassin whom he had apparently admitted to the house himself.

His room was in disorder, with the chair overturned, a telephone beside the bed knocked over, and curtains at one window torn down. Police said the room was so heavily carpeted, however, that persons sleeping directly overhead might have heard nothing.

Body Discovered

The murder was discovered when Mrs. Lindars went to the doctor's room to call him for breakfast. The door was locked, and there was no answer when she and her husband pounded on it. Finally Lindars called a policeman. An ambulance surgeon said the doctor had been dead for some time.

Dr. Deely was about 54 years old and had been practicing in the Columbia Heights section of Brooklyn, overlooking lower Manhattan and New York harbor, for 20 years. The district had for many years been the home of conservative and wealthy Brooklyn families.

He was a bachelor.

"Fascism," says the French editor, "is a sort of religion, subjecting everything and every one to the Moloch state, and therefore is essentially pagan." The world does not yet appreciate the great and serious importance of these anti-religious outbreaks.

TRIAL CONTINUES

Jury in Lowther Murder Hearing Likely To Be Completed Today.

JEFFERSON, O., June 2—With each side having six peremptory challenges left, it was expected the greater part of today's session would be required to seat a jury to hear the first degree murder trial of Mrs. Maude Lowther.

A jury of five women and seven men was tentatively seated yesterday after 32 veniremen had been examined, but peremptory challenges, it was indicated, would remove some of them today.

Mrs. Lowther, a 23-year-old Ashtabula housemaid, sat pale and silent while she listened to the selection of those who still decide whether she is guilty of the slaying of Mrs. Clara Smith, 27, wife of the defendant's alleged lover, Tilby Smith. Smith is under a sentence of death.

Mrs. Lowther's attorneys asked each veniremen if mercy would be recommended in the event of a guilty verdict. The state accepted only those who said they would inflict the death penalty if the evidence warrants.

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O., June 2—City council today had passed an ordinance providing an average rate of 55 cents a thousand cubic feet for gas. The East Ohio Gas company has a choice of allowing it to become effective in 40 days, protesting to the public utilities commission, or taking the matter to court.

OPEN ANOTHER DAIRY PLANT

C. H. Isaly of Marion Heads New Concern in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Announcement of the opening of an Isaly Dairy Co. in Pittsburgh, Pa., last Thursday with Henry A. Isaly as treasurer and manager, was made today by C. H. Isaly of Marion, brother of Henry Isaly.

C. H. Isaly has assisted since last August in the organization of the new corporation in Pittsburgh, and, although the corporation is in no way connected with the Isaly Daily Co. of Marion, he was made president of the concern.

It is the fourth company to bear the name of the Isaly Dairy Co., each being a separate and complete organization in itself but all headed by members of the Isaly family. In addition to plants in Pittsburgh and Marion, members of the family now operate plants in Mansfield where Jesse Isaly is manager, and in Youngstown where Samuel Isaly is manager.

Thirty-two persons bearing the surname of Isaly, located in Marion, Mansfield, Youngstown, Pittsburgh and Columbus, are interested in the new Pittsburgh plant. All are related.

Forty thousand persons visited the new plant at its opening last Thursday at 3380 Boulevard of the Allies, in Pittsburgh. Fifteen thousand persons went through the plant, which, like the other three, will handle and manufacture dairy products, ice cream, milk and cheese.

Officers of the company are C. H. Isaly of Marion, president; Henry A. Isaly of Pittsburgh, treasurer and manager; John Martig of Louisville, O., vice president; Samuel Isaly of Youngstown, secretary.

It is a closed corporation capitalized at $500,000.

ASKS DISMISSAL OF COOPERATIVE SUIT

Receiver Files Petition in Behalf of Farmers' Milk Association.

By International News Service

CLEVELAND, June 2—Claiming that five members of the Ohio Farmers Cooperative Milk association, who were listed among 22 petitioners in a joint involuntary bankruptcy suit against the cooperative, had not authorized the use of their names, the association today had filed a motion in federal district court here to dismiss the action.

Date for hearing on the motion was set for June 13 before Judge Paul Jones. Charles Smith, federal receiver for the co-operative, filed the dismissal action in behalf of the association.

Date for hearing on the motion was set for June 13 before Judge Paul Jones. Charles Smith, federal receiver for the co-operative, filed the dismissal action in behalf of the association.

According to Smith's motion, five names of creditors in the bankruptcy action were unauthorized. He alleged that without the names of these creditors the total amount claimed to be owed by the association to the petitioners would be less than $500, the required amount in an involuntary bankruptcy action. In the original bankruptcy petition the total amount claimed by the petitioners was $592.40 of which more than $100 was represented by the five members whose names allegedly were not authorized.

Names of members used without authority were H. B. Claus and Lloyd S. Bacon of Vermilion; A. B. Heyman of Berlin Heights; J. G. Whipple and George Jacobs of Painesville, the petition avers.

* * *

Walter A. Spencer of near Claridon, a member of the association, recently filed an intervening petition to protect himself and all other members of the association in an action brought against it by the federal farm board to collect a $400,000 loan.

Spencer's intervening petition seeks to recover for members of the association approximately $840,000 which members are said to have paid for the construction of a distributing point for their milk.

LUCKY TIGER

Consider your Adam's Apple!!*

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

When you visit your physician for your periodic health examination, one of the very first things he asks you to do is to open your mouth wide, and to say "Ah." He is examining the delicate lining of your throat. "Ah!" There is not a man or woman who could even make this simple sound, if in the throat there were no Adam's Apple. For your Adam's Apple is your larynx—the voice box containing your vocal chords. And what a delicate piece of Nature's handiwork the Adam's Apple is. A slight cold—even a tiny particle lodged in the throat—and our voice often grows husky. In acute cases, we may even lose our voice for several days. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Daily Proverb—"Fraud is the recourse of weakness and cunning."

One or two news stories on the red rioting in Youngstown last Friday night intimated that there was not any serious result thereof. There is always a serious result to law-breaking—the encouragement it offers to like excesses.

The railroads have become so proficient in transporting passengers safely that some of them can no longer show the improvement which has been worked by them in avoiding life loss by citing the ratio of passengers killed to passengers carried, but are compelled to show how many might have been killed had not their safety campaigns been inaugurated.

Al Jolson is reported to be desirous of portraying the part of the "Lawd" in a talkie version of "The Green Pastures." One need not question Al's ability to do the part, but it surely would prove quite a departure from the line he has been following.

A New Jerseys town has a force of seven officers—the mayor, a captain, a lieutenant, three sergeants and a finger-print expert, and but three patrolmen. It may be all right, however. The captain, the lieutenant, the three sergeants and the finger-print expert may have accepted the titles in lieu of more pay.

A verdict for $891 has been awarded against a citizen of Monticello, New York, for running into and damaging a locomotive at a grade crossing. Beating the train to the crossing may lose its popularity if the recklessly-inclined have to suffer monetary damage when they fail to do so.

The Rev. Francis Woodlock, a well-known London pastor, has called the British Broadcasting company to account for its "impudence" for letting loose over the radio on the occasion of the Joan of Arc celebration an "irresponsible playboy and mountebank" to speak on a national saint, the mountebank reference being to George Bernard Shaw. Come to think of it, George does talk a lot at times, and not always wisely.

So great is the speed and so erratic the course of traffic over the state highway running through their village, that residents of Atwood, Michigan, as a safety first measure, have decided to move their homes sixty feet back from the roadway. It might help some were they also to place them something like ten feet above ground on foundations of solid concrete. "There's never any telling."

Government—federal, state, county, city and village—last year cost the people of the United States $13,000,000,000, an increase of 333 per cent. since 1913. But that isn't a marker to what it will cost if the people continue to keep on mortgaging the future to gratify the fads, fancies, isms and socialistic ideas of the present.

President Nicholas Murray Butler says that the United States senate can relieve the slump; that that body looms larger in the world's eyes than any government agency. If the senate is our one salvation, heaven help us. Look what it did to employment and the drought-stricken farmers.

Still Going Up.

The federal deficit and bonus loans to World War veterans went over the billion-dollar line together. And both are still going, with nothing in sight to stop them.

When the bonus legislation was pending, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon told congress it would establish a potential liability of $1,720,000,000, including approximately $325,000,000 already loaned under the old plan. His was an extreme view. It is good business practice to figure the maximum liability, but it seems incredible that there will be a move to cancel the loans.

The demand for them, however, has crept up steadily toward Mr. Mellon's estimate. Almost 2,000,000 applications have been made, and the end is not in sight yet. It becomes the task of the treasury to find more money. Already $800,000,000 has been borrowed, and more must be obtained. Applications continue at the rate of 35,000 a week.

There is not even the solace of knowing that when the hurdle is cleared there will be a breathing spell. In a speech delivered at Alexandria, Virginia, last April Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American legion, outlines further measures he expects the next congress to enact in the interests of veterans. They include:

Increasing the disability compensation for World War veterans to the level allowed to veterans of other wars—a move which is bound to be made sooner or later.

Pensions for widows and orphans of veterans.

Relief for the wives and children of veterans who are in hospitals.

Increasing hospital facilities for those who will be in the need of treatment in the future.

The Facts Are the Story.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, claims prohibition is in a stronger position now than ever before. In a speech delivered at Canton, Sunday night, he called for an overwhelming dry vote in the next election to close the wet-dry issue once and for all, lest it hang on to bother another generation.

The facts of prohibition give a hint as to what may happen.

Eighty years ago today the first effective state prohibition law became effective in Maine. It was the result of the first wave of prohibition sentiment in the United States—a wave that swept many other states into the prohibition harbor before the outbreak of the Civil war. Those states were, in addition to Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Delaware, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota. A recession swept all but five of them back to sea before 1863.

In the 1880's a second wave of prohibition sentiment flowed. Kansas was the first state to adopt prohibition by constitutional amendment. Maine bolstered its statutory prohibition by an amendment, and was followed by Rhode Island and the Dakotas. Iowa adopted statutory prohibition in 1884 after her prohibition amendment of an earlier date had been declared unconstitutional. Then again there was a recession. Local option became the cry, and twelve of the fourteen states which had voted upon state constitutional prohibition between 1887 and 1890 rejected it. Seven states remained steadfast Iowa, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Kansas and the Dakotas. Four of them—Iowa, South Dakota, Vermont and New Hampshire—substituted local option in the late 90's and the early 1900's. The recession had been even more complete than before. Only three states remained in the prohibition harbor.

The third wave of prohibition sentiment swept Georgia, Oklahoma and Alabama before it in 1907, and by 1920, the year the national amendment went into effect, thirty-three of the forty-eight states were dry by statute, referendum or amendment. Rhode Island and Connecticut were the only states refusing to ratify the national amendment.

The recession after the third wave, thus far, has been slight; New York, Montana, Wisconsin and Massachusetts have repealed their state prohibition laws, and others have tried to do so unsuccessfully. Maryland never has had a state prohibition law.

The next general election will down the liquor question forever or it will be a contested issue for the next generation, warn advocates of prohibition. The facts of prohibition's history in the United States are a firm basis for their fears. The story of the two previous waves of prohibition sentiment indicates plainly what is likely to happen.

Two Texas sheriffs who saved two negroes from mobs are to be decorated with medals for their courage and judgment. Well, if there is one southern state which more than any other might have been expected to revolt against lynchings it is Texas.

Doubtless there are those who would have the court consider the "extreme youth" of the fifteen-year-old lad who brags how he beat that Chicago policeman he killed "to the draw."

The Mayors and Tex.

It would not be surprising to hear that the state department was looking around for another Lindbergh to carry American good will to France.

The American mayors visiting France, a group that really should have included "Big Bill" Thompson, are acting like children at a garden party, to the disrespectful amusement of their hosts. They are turning up their noses at the wrong time and at the wrong things, quarreling among themselves, making speeches where speeches are not wanted, and enjoying themselves immensely withal, just as thousands of others have done before them.

Texas Guinan, her white horse, and entourage of ravishing American "girls" also are taking a hand in the good work of promoting friendship across the sea. Miss Guinan's threat to turn Montmarte inside out with New York brand whoopee, thereby depriving French entertainers, also out of work, of a chance to make an honest living is causing the French government to take care of its own in a direct way—by keeping her and her crowd away from Montmarte. It's difficult to determine which is worse: "Tex" threatening and making the French angry, or performing and making them disgusted.

Perhaps the state department isn't so worried about it all as some people might imagine it should be. After all, a lot of Frenchmen who visit the United States don't promote any international friendship, and Maurice Chevalier and a few others never have been set out in the street for threatening the welfare of American entertainers.

The Eskimos in and about Point Hope, Alaska, have acquired such a liking for the ease and comfort of jail life that they are committing crimes to get arrested and be imprisoned with the result that Point Hope has had to start the erection of a big new jail. There have been times when we have rather inclined to the belief that some of our penal institutions down here in the States were having a somewhat similar effect.

Twenty-three hours after the Leviathan arrived at her dock in New York from her last westward trip, she cleared the port, having taken on her passengers and freight, her food supplies, 60,000 pieces of linen which meanwhile had ben washed and ironed, 2,830 tons of oil and a million gallons of water. Speaking of speed records, here's one which should hold for some time to come.

Trotzky holds that the soviet five-year plan is a failure; that Stalin deceives the people and that Russia is fifty years behind the world. Making all due allowances for possible prejudice on the part of one who has been excluded from the "pickings," it must be said that the former New York soap box orator is probably nearer the truth than some of the so-called intelligentsia over here who are advocating that Uncle Sam take the red serpent to his bosom.

Editorial Opinion.

SCIENTISTS INVADE THE UPPER AIR.

Professor Piccard of the University of Brussels has excellent reason for his elation over the remarkable success of his excursion into the earth's stratosphere. There moisture is lacking and there eternal calm prevails in piercing cold under bright stars that shine by day as well as by night, since the light of the sun is little diffused in the thin high air. Professor Piccard is too much of a scientist and too modest a man to care about the mere breaking of balloon ascension records, but he is convinced, as are other physicists, that science has much to learn from navigation in the upper reaches of the earth's gaseous envelope. Consequently he proposes, instead of resting content with his late achievement, to continue his flights into the blue in order that he may register, with his delicate instruments, important facts regarding conditions approximating those obtaining in the vast interstellar spaces.

The exact value of his recent unprecedented ascent remains to be determined, but Professor Piccard is satisfied that his recorded figures contain new and important disclosures regarding the mysterious so-called cosmic rays which bombard the earth from all directions and the radioactivity of the stars on the earth's remote ceiling.

"We rose 52,500 feet," says Professor Piccard, "and all we saw was blue space." That space is navigable for at least ten miles up. So it may be possible, with the aid of additional inventions and appliances, for human life to maintain itself in the stratosphere during fairly long periods while studies not possible on the earth but of great interest and value to humanity are carried on.

Professor Piccard and his worthy associate in their carefully calculated adventure exhibited rare qualities of courage, coolness and devotion to science. Their extraordinary and perilous feat easily might have ended in tragedy in any one of a variety of ways. They have demonstrated once more that peace and the life of the spirit have their victories and their occasions for exalted heroism.—Chicago News.

SURVEYING THE TREASURY DEFICIT.

Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Ogden Mills of the federal treasury department have delivered within the last few days important radio addresses on the government's fiscal condition and the prospects of the national treasury. Neither indulged in forecasts of the Pollyanna type. The huge deficit of the current fiscal year has been discounted, psychologically speaking, but other substantial deficits are probable. Indeed, the federal revenue system may have to be restudied and modified in the near future to meet the costs of government as swollen by congressional enactments with or without executive approval.

No new taxes are contemplated by the treasury officials at this time, but they have intimated that it may be necessary to reconsider the rates and exemptions in the income-tax law as it now stands. The income tax has become virtually a class tax, as Secretary Mellon pointed out. Only 2,500,000 persons pay income taxes, and 380,000 of these pay ninety-seven per cent. of the total. Something may be done, in the view of Mr. Mills, to increase the yield of the income tax without overburdening the middle brackets or reaching those actually unable to pay more in taxes than they are paying.

Neither Mr. Mellon nor Mr. Mills had any final and specific suggestions to submit, but both manifestly wanted the public to know that the treasury department is studying the fiscal situation and seeking just and practicable means of curing the deficit.

Apparently the treasury department is not considering suspension of payments on the war debt. Secretary Mellon spoke of the sinking fund without mentioning that possibility. Mr. Mills pointed out that the deficit included the $440,000,000 set aside annually for extinction of the debt by the operation of the statutory sinking fund. There is nothing sacrosanct about that statute. The business world feels that the war debt is being retired at too rapid a rate, in view of the general burdens of government. True, fat surpluses constitute a temptation to congress and cause extravagance, and Mr. Mills is right in regarding a balanced budget as the ideal in federal finance. But the present fiscal situation is exceptional, and exceptional steps for meeting it should be taken. Suspension of the sinking fund for a few years might remove the necessity for increased taxation.—Chicago News.

Ground Enough.

Mr. Woodcock has suspended two prohibition agents charged with "fearful judgment" and "carelessness beyond all reason." We've known men to get fired for less than that.—Macon Telegraph.

Disturbance of Thyroid Gland.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

About 100 years ago an eminent physician named Graves was the first to describe a disturbance of the thyroid glad. In honor of this man and in appreciation of his classical work, the name "Graves' disease" still attaches to this ailment. It is similar to the condition referred to as "exophthalmic goiter."

Any enlargement of the thyroid gland is called goiter. This gland is located in the front of the neck, associated with "Adam's apple."

The victim of the so-called exophthalmic goiter usually presents marked exophthalmos. By this is meant large and protruding eyeballs.

The presence of this sign alone does not necessarily imply that Graves' disease is the cause. Many individuals with large and protruding eyeballs inherit this deformity. It is often a family trait.

A rapid pulse, excessive perspiration, loss of weight, bulging eyeballs and enlarged thyroid gland are more positive findings of this condition. When all these symptoms appear, they prove pretty conclusively that this disease is present.

With the enlargement of the thyroid gland there is an increase in the normal secretion of the gland. It is a substance called "thyroxin." The excessive amount of thyroxin acts as a stimulating drug would, producing the rapid pulse and overactive body function.

The diagnosis of this condition is easily confirmed. The scientific tests distinguish Graves' disease from other similar diseases. Such methods of confirming or disproving the condition were not known in the days of Dr. Graves.

Surgery is often resorted to for the relief of goiter. The advances made in the surgery of the thyroid gland have been tremendous. Operation upon this structure is no longer feared.

Knowledge of this disease has greatly advanced since it was first described. A means of prevention has not yet been found. Already much suffering and untold anguish have been eliminated. It is believed that in time this disease may be prevented.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

F. A. B. Q—Is an operation necessary to correct a rupture?

A—Yes, in most cases?

S. S. W. Q—What causes severe headache?

A—The common causes of headache are: eye strain, infected teeth, tonsils and sinuses, constipation, indigestion, auto-intoxication, high blood pressure, kidney conditions or catarrh. A thorough examination is necessary to locate the exact cause.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Friday, June 2.

Miss Elizabeth Scheider, of Huron, this state, and Elva Eustace Seneff, of the Marion Ohio State team, eloped to Sandusky and were married.

The home of J. M. Tucker on Cleveland avenue was badly damaged by fire.

Judge E. H. Gary was organizing his great steel combine.

The alumni of the Prospect High school held their annual banquet in the Knights of Pythias hall there.

Marion, with Regan pitching, defeated Portsmouth, four to two.

Fourteen-year-old Jamie McMurray was very seriously injured when the bicycle he was riding was hit by an automobile.

Marion friends learned of the marriage of Miss Katherine Ahlefeld, of Kenton, and Mr. George A. Gallinger, of Pittsburgh, at the home of the bride's parents, by Dr. Price A. Crow.

Dinner Stories.

"How do you know that man is a statesman?"

"Because," replied Senator Sorghum, "he can wear a silk hat and a frock coat without looking as if he were going to a wedding."

Mrs. Brown—"I admire Dr. Young immensely. He is so persevering in the face of difficulties that he always reminds me of Patience sitting on a monument."

Brown—"Yes, but what I am being rather alarmed about is the number of monuments sitting on his patients."

"And have I a pupil in my eye?"

"Yes," said the teacher.

"And has my sister Margery?"

"Of course."

"That's funny! I heard ma say she had a young doctor in her eye."

Appreciation of Modern Science.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most extraordinary delusions of mankind is the pessimistic opinion that present-day civilization is not an advance, an improvement, over the past. From time to time, some eminent or authoritative public figure advances the view that progress is a delusion. A famous English divine, widely read on both sides of the Atlantic, recently said he could discover no law of human progress. Not a few present-day celebrities or notorieties have proclaimed their pessimism, their doubt regarding the gains of our age.

One of the most conspicuous illustrations of progress which can be found is afforded by the case of science. In this instance, there is no room for doubt; the proofs may be adduced in overwhelming number. If we go back half a century, we find that the scientist received little regard from the public and was often the butt of public ridicule. By his colleagues he was usually esteemed, but some of our most profound scientists were almost unrecognized, even in scientific circles, during their lives. A conspicuous illustration is afforded by J. Willard Gibbs, one of the most eminent constructive thinkers in science this country has ever produced. For a time he labored at a great university without any compensation at all; and for many years he received what would be regarded today as the merest pittance. This great thinker was almost a recluse; his constructive ideas were matured in solitude. Foreign scientists recognized his merits; but at home he was neglected and almost ignored. Since his death he has come to be recognized, throughout the entire world, as a constructive force in science, who devised new systems and expounded new laws, in the realm of dynamics. He has had, in his field, few equals and no superiors.

The revolution to which attention is called is a revolution in the attitude of public and press towards science and scientists. A few decades ago, the scientists, with their long-winded disquisitions and unintelligible terms, were stock jokes of the daily press. Within recent years, the American public has "discovered" science. The reason is not far to seek. Science has demonstrated its incalculable potential value. People appreciate things which will or may bring them appreciable financial rewards. The great industrial plants maintain costly laboratories where salaried scientists are constantly at work, developing new processes, making economies in production, improving, devising, inventing.

It may be replied, perhaps, that these remarks apply only to inventors, to workers in applied science. This is true to a certain extent; but this growing appreciation of the material value of scientific discoveries has resulted in creating a respect and regard for pure science and its practitioners as well. The names of Einstein, Rutherford, Millikan, Michelson, Eddington, Jeans, for example, are constantly seen in the public prints.

Today, the public wants to know. It has become better educated; and has a smattering of science. A new curiosity has been bred in the public mind, to learn, if possible, the complicated ideas, theories and applications of the most profound scientific thinkers of the day. We all appreciate and hold the scientist in high regard. This is an undoubted sign of notable progress. Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Bears an Ohio Boy's Name.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The city of Caspar, Wyoming, now the center of the vast oil and wool industry of Wyoming, usually appears spelled with an "e" instead of an "a" in the last syllable, but it should be spelled with an "a" for it was named after an Ohio boy, who lost his life there, who so spelled his name.

Caspar Collins was the son of Colonel William O. Collins, a lawyer of Hillsboro, Ohio, who recruited and commanded the Eleventh Ohio cavalry in the Civil war, and his son, Caspar, who went into the service with his father as a non-commissioned officer, rose to the rank of first lieutenant before he met his death in the Far West.

The companies of the Eleventh cavalry were scattered at once and were in fact never again together, but kept moving among the hostile Indians of the Far West. On July 25, 1865, the wagon train of a detachment moving to Platte Bridge was surrounded by Indians about twenty miles from the bridge, and Lieutenant Collins was ordered to go with twenty-four troopers to its relief. Whoever was responsible for the order did not comprehend the situation, for there were thousands of well-armed Indians concealed about the stopped train.

Collins knew he was riding to his death, and gave certain of his personal effects to brother officers before he started, with the remarks that he probably would not get back alive. A brother officer advised him to disregard the order, but he replied that he had never failed to obey and rode out. Encountering the Indians, he wheeled his men in column of fours, left into line, and charged, only to find they were surrounded by thousands of Indians.

So close in on all sides were the Indians that they found they were shooting each other and desisting for that reason. Collins saw an opening through which he might ride to safety and though wounded in the hip dashed away, but hearing the cry of a wounded soldier turned to lift him to his horse and was set upon and killed. His body horribly mutilated was recovered and claimed by his family and brought to Ohio for burial.

Deeply impressed with the bravery of his action his companions substituted his name for that of Platte Bridge, and it stands today as a fitting monument to the bravery of the lieutenant and his little band that was annihilated as Custer's was on the Little Big Horn.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 2—Theatrical audiences frequently forced to endure the agony of an actor going up in his lines or a performance suddenly going haywire. I have been a ringside of several of these spectacles. Strangely they happen in the tense travail of a first night.

The most embarrassing was about nine years ago. A great dramatic star was opening in a new play. Rarely had such a distinguished first night audience gathered. There was the usual applause at the star's entrance and the expectant pause for her first line.

It was a murmurous mumble. Listeners naturally thought it a touch of stage fright as she continued jerkily, finally lurched forward and let go a full blown hiccup. With a gasp of shock the audience realized she was drunk. And the curtain rolled down.

Then there was that grand gesture of Robert Warwick in averting a first-night fiasco. An acrid, burning odor was making the house restless. A coil of smoke puffed out from the ceiling. A scream and the audience was in pandemonium. Warwick stepped to the footlights with a graceful speech and saved the day.

At the old Knickerbocker a celebrated actor at his premiere was suddenly stricken with dumbness. After several promptings from the wings, he walked toward his audience and in a white-faced calm said: "I regret, but I have completely forgot my lines." He suffered a nervous breakdown next day.

Recently an East Indian magician put on an illusion show in one of the intimate theatres. The curtain, ringing up an hour late, stuck half way in its ascension. A series of hilarious tragic blunders ensued, exposing all tricks and the audience was a collective "good sport" and stayed to the finish.

Often awkward accidents have been capitalized. Bert Wheeler was clowning in a night cave. There were terrific uncalled for crashes back stage. "It's the mice!" chirped Wheeler and the incident was kept in the show. W. C. Fields similarly capitalized a bit of faulty scenery in a revue skit.

• • •

Twenty-five years ago Harry Von Tilzer was one of the most successful composers of sentimentality ing such sentimentalities as "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage," etc. His vogue declined and today his income is greater than ever in royalties from old songs in radio revivals.

• • •

Speaking of theatrical interruptions: At the Apollo one evening a lady down front suddenly blurted out loud: "Henry, we forgot to get the car back for mother and now she'll have to get her train!" And to add to the hilarity of the audience burst into furious applause and rushed up the aisle, thus stopping the show.

• • •

They were talking about the good old days, the decline of jazz and the return to simplicity. Finally Frazier Hunt stood up, yawned and complained he was off to look for a job to begin manufacturing side-bar buggies and flintlock muskets.

Eva Tanguay shivering in her epileptic seizures and singing her old favorite "I don't care" in a modest Brooklyn auberge with a wrench for many who worshipped at her vaudeville shrine in the long ago. Miss Tanguay was drawing a salary of $2,500 a week when $100 was a big weekly wage. Fortune time her eyesight has been dimming and years have plucked the inevitable toll—yet there are moments when she sparks like the temperamental Eva of old. She was the first of the "It" girls—exuding an electrical quality that packed vaudeville houses from coast to coast in the days when vaudeville was vaude.

• • •

I am one hoping for a come-back of vaudeville. Some time ago it had a spurt, but cloying again with repetitious acts and sterility "name turns." It needs chiefly to vaudeville, instead of trying to go dramatic, musical revue-ish and grand opera. We need vaudeville for Blossom Seely and Benny Fields. To the "Met." for Jeritza.

• • •

To the true vaudevillian a fast Indian club swinging act or a brace of trick bicycle riders is welcome. And at the moment I'd trade the favorite play-pretty—the grand desk set that Pierre Cartier gave me—to hear Charlie Chaplin his father or Frank Tinney heckle the orchestra leader—he invented that, by the way. Maybe I'm wrong about vaudeville. Anyway I do I know what I'm doing?—Copyright, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, June 2—Washington music lovers, who prefer to take their symphony concerts around tea time, perhaps will have an opportunity next season.

At that time the capital is to have a symphony orchestra, to be known as the National Symphony orchestra. Hans Kindler, the cello virtuoso conductor, has been chosen to direct the new ensemble.

Washington has had a rather difficult time in its efforts to form an orchestra such as the National Symphony. It is not that the city lacks its quota of music lovers. Every season gets its annual share of symphony orchestras from the leading touring orchestras.

At every one of these concerts you will see in the audience music lovers of all sorts. The late Speaker Nicholas Longworth never missed a concert. Former Senator Phipps of Colorado, always could be spotted as one of those two accomplished musicians of the state Walcott, of Connecticut, and Hebert of Rhode Island.

Senator Bulkley, of Ohio, who does much to promote grand opera in his home city of Cleveland, is another faithful attendant.

• • •

Past attempts for a Washington symphony have not been successful. The late Reginald de Koven headed an orchestra in the capital, in fact paid most of its bills. But financial strain proved too great for him.

Then followed a cooperative effort by Heinrich Hammer which lasted only one season.

Since the war, three attempts have been made to organize a symphony orchestra in the capital. Kurt Hetzel tried several years ago a few concerts, but nothing came of it. One winter, in an effort to relieve unemployment, musicians organized on a cooperative basis and gave several concerts.

Out of this attempt grew conviction that Washington needed a symphony and that Hans Kindler was the man to be its conductor.

• • •

Kindler is to have an aggregate of 100 musicians in his ensemble. During the season twenty-four concerts will be given, beginning early in November. There are to be eight regular symphonic concerts, eight popular concerts and eight children's concerts.

These two latter ventures, absent before, are credited with bringing much support to the project.

About $60,000 already has been guaranteed. $20,000 more is needed. The sponsors hope to raise the additional funds during the season if it is not subscribed before.

The concerts will be held at 4:30 in the afternoon—the capital's favorite concert hour in Constitution hall, the new home of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

MARY STOCKWELL DURFEE, president and head of the voice department and Abram Ruvinsky, head of the violin department of the Collinwood Conservatory of Music, Toledo, were heard in a group of delightfully entertaining numbers when Mrs. Frank Morris of the Green Camp-Owens pike, opened her home to members of the All Arts club of Prospect and a number of guests for a musicale, last night.

The lovely country home of Mrs. Morris afforded an attractive setting for the affair which brought together about 50 guests for a charming summer musical and social event. Following the program refreshments were served in the dining room where Mrs. Morris was assisted by Mrs. Durfee, Mrs. Edwin Powell of Prospect, Mrs. Clarence M. Long and Mrs. Fred Morris of Marion. The guests were met at the door by little Miss Kathryn Griffith of Prospect.

Mrs. Annetta Winters of the All Arts club presided for the first part of the program which was presented by members of the club and their guest musicians. Miss Betty Griffith opened the program with "Indian Lament" by Priscilla Risher, and Mrs. C. E. Sechrist, Mrs. Paul Kyle and Miss Pauline Wyatt, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Earl Wottring sang a trio number, "At Evening Time," by Ira Wilson.

Stauffer and Mrs. Waldo Elliot as a piano duet and Miss Lucile Thomas sang "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," Sir Henry Bishop and "The Gypsy and the Bird," Sir Julius Benedict. Her accompanist was Miss Elizabeth Wottring and L. B. McNeal played a flute obligato.

"Le Petit Ane Blanc" by Jacques Ibert and "The Flight of the Bumblebee," by Rimsky Korsakof, were the titles of two numbers played on the piano by Miss Elizabeth Wottring and Mrs. C. E. Sechrist and Mrs. Paul Kyle sang a duet, "Fiddle and I," by Arthur Goodeve. Miss Pauline Wyatt accompanied the number with a violin obligato and Mrs. Earl Wottring played the piano accompaniment.

The club program concluded with the presentation of two flute numbers, "The Carnival of the Brownies" by Charles L. Howe, and "Song Without Words," Terschak. He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Elizabeth Wottring.

Mrs. Durfee, who possesses a beautiful soprano voice and magnificent range sang "Sente Nel Core" Scarlatti, "Ouvre tes Yeux Bleus" Massenet and two Macdowell numbers, "The Robin Sings in the Apple Tree" and "Midsummer Lullaby." Mr. Ruvinsky's numbers, which were played with feeling and superb interpretative art, played "Meditation" from "Thais," Massenet, "Minuet in D," Mozart, "Rigaudon," Monsigny," Viennese Melody" Kreisler, "Hejre Kati," Hubay and "Adgletto," Bizet. Both Mrs. Durfee's and Mr. Ruvinsky's accompaniments were played by Mrs. Harold K. Mouser of Marion.

Guests aside from Mrs. Durfee Mr. Ruvinsky and members of the club were Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Schaffner, Mrs. C. M. Long, Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, Mrs. J. G. McNamara, Mrs. Fred Morris, Mrs. Fanny Benson, Miss Edna Dutton and L. B. McNeal of Marion, Mrs. E. P. Curtis, Mrs. David Hord, Mrs. E. M. Stockwell, Mrs. Dio Dix, and Miss Edna Stockwell of Prospect.

"Rich in March"

Nora came home each ... the office, she found ... further stages of dis... ...rel's stood about, the ...ed up and the keen ...ne pouring through ...s fell on the faded ... wall paper.

...nd her one afternoon ... the window, looking ... back yard.

... come to say good-by." ... her hands behind her ... looking into his eager ...

It was his voice speaking her name in a way he had never said it before, in a way that was of greater significance than anything that had ever happened to her.

"You're coming with me. I haven't a thing to offer you. Poverty and struggle."

"Do you think I would go straight into that life, knowing what it means?"

"No, I didn't think you would."

"Then why did you ask me?"

"So that you'll never forget me. As I'll never forget you—no matter what happens to us—we'll remember."

He caught her close and kissed her and she clung to him for a moment. Then he was gone.

Aunt Em came in. She was carrying the old sign—Studio of Music—trying to find a barrel to put it in; she walked further about, as though she did not know what she was doing.

Nora leaned there against the window. It was true she would never forget him. She would think of him when she woke in the morning, when she went to sleep at night. She would know he was living more richly and fully than she could ever live. She felt lost and frightened; she who thought she would never be afraid again. She was losing the one thing in life she must have because she was willful and proud.

A strange, trembling, ecstasy shook her as the great tree was shaken outside the window. Something in her heart seemed to cry that the cold winter was broken. Poverty, struggle, that was all Fergus offered her. But looking back she saw that life in the red brick house had been rich because of that. Because poverty could not break their spirit nor dull their joy in living. And the security she had longed for was not a house, not a place only a state of being.

"Good by," Aunt Em,' she heard Fergus calling.

Suddenly she was alive again. All the zest for the gypsy-like life she had lived with Julian had returned in full flood. It was Fergus who needed her just as she needed him from the first moment she had come to Aunt Em's needed his strength and steadiness, the light in his eyes, and the touch of his hands. Such mad ecstacy shook her that she felt herself waking from a dream.

Fergus stood in the hall, his traveling bags at his feet, his soft hat in his hand as he said good by to Aunt Em.

"Wait! I'm coming with you! Wait!" she trembled.

She flew up the stairs to her attic room. "Hallie, I'm going away with Fergus. Oh, Hallie, what shall I do?"

Hallie hobbled in, competent, smiling, she began to put Nora's clothes into a bag.

"I'll pack the rest and send them on to you."

"Oh, Hallie, where's my coat, my hat?"

Pete Baker pattered in, wriggling his fat little body when he saw Nora put on her hat.

"Oh, Hallie, can't I take him?"

Hallie smiled, "You'll have your hands full with your violent young man without that beast along. In deed you cannot take him!"

Her bag was clamped shut, she was laughing, trembling, and Hallie stood watching her, her lips twisted in a smile.

"I hope he'll make a respectable woman of you," Hallie cried.

Nora laughed exultantly.

"Hallie, he's never asked me to marry him! Ask him his intentions, won't you?"

There was something strangely beautiful in the sudden gesture that Hallie made toward Nora.

"You're sure, Nora?"

"Sure?" Nora cried, "I knew that when he did not scorn my poor Julian—when he stood beside him—that no one but Fergus could ever matter again."

Nora and Hallie went down the stairs the last time together. Fergus took her bag, stooped to kiss Aunt Em and to wring Hallie's hand. Nora had her arms about them both, her eyes brilliant, her cheeks flushed.

"Aunt Em, darling, you must think I'm mad!"

"I think, Nora, it's the first sensible thing you've ever done," Aunt Em said.

They watched them as they went down the brown stone steps, Nora turning her face to Fergus at something he said, laughing in answer. The taxi door slammed behind them. They could hear Nora's voice calling, "Good-by, darling, darling!"

Aunt Em stood looking after them.

"We'll miss her, Hallie. But I think she'll be happy."

"She'll have so much to make her unhappy that I know she'll be happy," Hallie said.

Aunt Em went into the back parlor, she sat rocking, her eyes far away on a little village tucked among the hills. She was watching her lover come through the meadow toward her.

"Hallie, you remember I said we would be rich in March?"

But Hallie was not listening; she too was far away. She was watching a small, gay, gypsy-like figure, dark hair tossed in the wind. Beside her was a tall grunt man. They had come to the edge of the woods. Hallie wanted to follow them, see him through their exultant eyes, but when she searched through the wood for them they were gone, swallowed up by the dense trees.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Lillian Discuss the Identity of the Sender of the Note.

KATHERINE'S command to 'sleep all day' must have dominated my sub-consciousness for it was almost sunset when I awoke from a sleep so profound that for the fraction of a second I did not recognize my own room. Remembering her injunction not to rise until she had 'looked me over' I put my hand under my pillow and taking out the tiny bell which Katherine had placed there I rang it as she had directed. I felt distinctly foolish as I did so, for my fatigue was completely gone, and I knew that I was perfectly able to get up and resume my usual routine of life.

I said as much to my little nurse when a few seconds later she came into the room, Lillian following closely behind her. Katherine looked at me keenly and her practiced fingers brushed my forehead and then rested for a little upon my pulse. When she took her hand away, she looked quizzically at me.

"Lady, take my wrist watch also my thermometer," she said with a little bow. 'From what Lillian has told me of your experiences today you ought to be running a temperature. But you're looking as fit as ever. What about it, Lillian? Shall I let her up?"

Lillian looked me over judicially. "Yes, if you'll let me ride herd on her," she said.

"All right!" Katherine moved toward the door . . . 'That suits me. I have quite a mess of fish to fry before night falls.'

Lillian's head went up. "Don't you do any more of those. I'll finish them."

Katherine wrinkled her nose at us as she closed the door. 'Yes, look after Madge. I'll attend to the flatirons."

'The flatirons," I repeated slowly, looking at Lillian, then at her queerly embarrassed look. I laughed with friendly malice.

'Behold the stern mother who told her daughter she must get back from the beach party in time to press her gowns before she packed them for 'foreign parts journey,'" I said. "You and Katherine have been putting those summer wardrobes in order."

"Guilty as charged, m'lud," she admitted shamefacedly. "And such a mess you never saw as the closets. If they worked all night they wouldn't be ready. I know," as my eyebrows rose involuntarily, "It is all wrong, and they ought to be compelled to take care of their own things. But you can't understand. When Faith grows up she will do everything properly, being your daughter - unless, indeed she happens to take after the Dickybird. But Marion is my daughter and Mary, Dicky's niece. They don't inherit orderliness. So, thinking it over after they went, I decided I ought to be a bit more lenient."

"You mean you decided to humor yourself," I retorted. "You would rather fuss over Marion's clothes than take the finest trip ever planned. But how did you manage? You don't - "

Know a gusset from a seam?" she countered, smiling at my embarrassment. "I know it. But I'm a heaven-sent packer, also a presser, and Katherine has done whatever mending was needed. And you've called the turn. I did want to do it for her. Just now I want to help you dress. You look a bit shaky yet."

Madge and Lillian Agree

"Sorry I disappoint you," I said laughing, but I'm perfectly fit. But sit down. I want to talk to you when I've finished dressing."

She dropped into a low seat near the window and I waited with hands idly resting in her lap. I never have seen a woman who can be so magnificently indolent as Lillian. When she is not in the whirlwind of action which is her profession demands, she can sit immobile as a statue for whatever moments of leisure are hers.

But when I had finished dressing and drawn a chair near hers there was nothing of restlessness in the knowing glance she gave me.

I don't need three guesses as to the subject of your proposed conversation," she said. "You've decided who is responsible for that letter addressed to Lee Chow."

I think you know it, too," I answered quietly.

"Jolly Bad" for Him, Too

"Elementary, Watson," she quoted smiling. 'There was only one person who knew of Lee Chow's acquaintance with you people.

'The Chinese gardenman who brought the first message from Lee Chow. Very sly."

"Exactly. And though I didn't see him, the man who terrified you a few days ago by saying that you must give up Marion's lock box to him or it would be 'jolly bad' for you."

"And jolly bad for him," I added thoughtfully. 'You know I never saw a more terror-stricken face than was his when he went down the path after telling me that. That's the only thing which makes me wonder whether this letter really is from him. He looked exactly as if he were a man sentenced to death when he should go back to the men who had sent him on the errand.'

Lillian looked at me oddly. 'Suppose he didn't go back to them," she said.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TUESDAY. It seems funny to not be thinking about school when a fella wakes up in the morning. I pushed Jubilee out of bed with my feet when we woke up this morning, and when I do that he thinks I want to play with him, so he grabbed my britches and started to shake them, and I got hold of the other leg, and then I had to make him stop because I was afraid he would pull so hard we might tear them in two and I would have had a hard time telling my mother how it happened.

There was a big bag in one corner of the attic, and it had been there ever since I could remember. It was full of carpet rags my grandmother had tore and sewed together and wound into balls as big as a fella's head, and then when my grandma had went away, as my mother always says, it never got wove into a carpet. I thought when I got the milking done I would go up and throw it out of the front window and then I could go down and get it and carry it around and sell it to Black Peter the junk man and get some money for the Fourth without bothering my mother about it. So I stayed at the table till my father and unkle had went to work and I was the last one, and then I snuck upstairs and got the bag which was bigger than me, but not so very heavy, and carried it to the front window and gave it a push to make it go through, and then I let go and poked my head out to see it land, and my ant come out to pick some of my mother's roses and the bag landed on her and flattened her out, and the balls of carpet rags were rolling all over the front yard.

I hustled down the stairs and went out of the kitchen walking slow and whistling, and then I streaked it to the barn and out into the alley and over to the vacant lot where the bunch were waiting, and then we took the cows out to the pasture and then went over to Mud Turkle pond, and there was a turkle on a log out in the middle I would of tooken off my clothes and swum under water till I got to him and grabbed him, but a fella can't do anything when girls are along, so we chunked sticks and things at him till he slid off into the water.

I didn't know whether to ast the girls to go home with me or not. I didn't want them to be there if I got licked, and I thought maybe if they were with me I mightn't get licked, so I didn't know what to do. But they went home with me, and the first thing my mother did was to ast me where I got the carpet rags and I told her the attic. And she was to get them that she [illegible] more about them [illegible] of the [illegible]

My ant wasn't hurt any. I didn't ast my mother if I might have them to sell. I don't think she would give them to me anyhow.

CHAPTER 1
"Poor Old Tony"

THE people of Orchard Hill, a small country town in Ohio, call him "Poor Old Tony" and laugh. I have often wondered why they laugh.

Antonio, himself, when he notices my indignation, always says in his gentle way, "Never mind; in laughter fools betray their ignorance; wise men their understanding."

Among those who know his history and appreciate his character, Antonio Latour is not a person to excite ridicule. His name once promised to endure with the names of Booth and Barrett and Irving and Mansfield and other actors of their day and rank. You who are old enough to remember the theater in the years from '76 to '88 will recall the great artists with whom he was associated. He had only small parts, it is true, but the critics spoke very kindly of his work. Many times I have seen the newspaper clippings, yellow with age and worn by much handling, which the old actor treasures with such pride.

But Antonio Latour's career was ended when he was still a young man. He is old now, with silver-white hair, faded blue eyes, and thin trembling limbs; but his fine old actor's face is lighted with rare intelligence and feeling; he carries himself with that proud erectness which distinguishes gentlemen of the stage and he never appears without a flower in the lapel of his ancient coat.

Antonio lives alone in the ancient house in which his father was born. From it he can see the many acres that once belonged to his ancestors. His family was rich, the villagers will tell you, as they wonder how the old actor manages now to keep soul and body together. "Poor Old Tony," they will say, "he set out to be a famous actor and now he has nothing."

But Old Tony laughs and says, "I have enough. When one has nothing one has freedom from a host of pestiferous bores. These good neighbors do not know how rich I am."

One evening, with a chuckle of mirth, Antonio said, "I overheard that Buxton woman talking about me today. She and two other women stopped in front of my house. 'And this here,' she said (the old actor mimicked the Buxton woman's voice to perfection), 'is the old Latour home that I've been tellin' you about. Old Tony Latour he's lived here all alone ever since he come back from actin' on the stage in New York. He's a good-fer-nothin' -a disgrace to his family and the community. Look, the house ain't had a brush of paint ner a tap of a hammer since his poor paw died. His paw and maw they was a real credit to the town and church. Elder Latour his paw was. She was a Deaconess. Ain't nobody ever heard tell what it was Tony done when he was an actor that made him quit and come home like he did, but it must 'a' been somethin' awful 'cause he ain't never been no good to himself ner to anybody else since.'" With another chuckle, the old actor explained: "The good ladies did not know I was just behind the hedge, digging up the ground for violets." He paused, then added softly, "Harriet loved violets."

Because his life experience is what it is, Old Tony thinks of his story as a play and of life itself in terms of the theater. Many times I have heard him declaim:

All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.
They have their exits and their entrances. . . .

"Circumstances," the old actor says, "shift the scenes; Fate is the stage manager; Nature the director; God the producer; we, the actors, enter, play our parts and exit. The play goes on and on and always there are members of the company standing in wings."

Our little village of Orchard Hill, with the First National Bank, the Owl Drug Store, Harriet's house, the home of the Careys and the county jail, to Old Tony is a stage set. The back drop is a scene of rolling hills with farm houses and fields showing here and there amid the woods. Tony's house is well down stage—close to the footlights, as it were—at the edge of the village, overlooking the river, the valley and the wide sweep of country beyond.

The Orchard Hill set has been changed since Antonio Latour's first entrance over 70 years ago. The simple peace and quiet of the country village where Harriet and Tony played their parts is gone now. Modern improvements have come to Orchard Hill—Rotaries, Lions, Kiwanis, a Chamber of Commerce, an Advertising Club, Boosters. When I remark, with lamentations, on these changes the old actor says, "Oh, well! the artists of the theater, you know, have always been forced to yield a little to the box office."

Many of the actors who were on the stage with Harriet and Tony in those opening scenes have made their final exits. Nor will Old Tony be sorry to make his exit, for he believes, as Pierre Donovan believes, that Harriet Noel, Pierre's mother, is there off stage waiting to welcome him and that together he and the woman he loved with such rare devotion will stand in the wings watching her son as he acts his part in this play which we call Life.

You know who Pierre Donovan is, of course. Perhaps you have seen him on the stage. There are those who say that his name will go down in theatrical history as the greatest actor of his generation.

Orchard Hill says that Antonio Latour has wasted his life in idleness. The old actor, when aroused, says of the villagers, "Clods, dolts! They do not know how great a thing it is to have helped to make an artist like Pierre Donovan. What can these people, in their narrow little commonplace cells walled in by their stupid materialism, know of the world in which Harriet Noel and I lived—the world into which Pierre was born? Fools! They think if they grow a good crop of potatoes or cabbages they have done something to brag about! Potatoes and cabbages—bah!"

And then the old actor falters; the spouting flames subside; the fire becomes a steady enduring glow, and his voice softens reverently: "Harriet was a great soul—the greatest soul that ever gave itself to the stage. What an actress she was! Pierre Donovan inherited his soul from his mother. Roy Donovan, Pierre's father, had no soul with which to endow his son. I knew that long before Donovan met Harriet, but what could I do?"

Antonio's forefathers were French, and Harriet's ancestors were of the same race. Harriet's father, "Doc" Noel, was a druggist and he and his wife were highly respected in Orchard Hill. Mrs. Noel died when Harriet was born and the child was raised by an ugly old housekeeper, feared by every youngster in the village. Forced to live too much within herself, the little girl soon learned that she could trick the housekeeper or her father into granting her almost anything and so grew up doing much as she pleased.

She was never a pretty child, as so many little girls are pretty. Her face was freckled, her nose strongly inclined to turn up; she had large gray-green eyes, a wide mouth, a broad forehead, and a general air of elfishness that provoked the villagers to wonder "what the child would come to."

In the years of their childhood, Tony and his little girl neighbor were often together, but she was no more to him than his other boy and girl playmates. He did not become conscious of her until the year before they graduated from the public school. They was 14; Harriet was two years younger.

"I overheard that Buxton woman talking about me today."

She had been a grade behind him but that year she caught up with his class so that they would graduate together.

One evening when we were sitting in the summer twilight the old gentleman said, "It is strange how that part of my life when I was an actor seems to me, now, to be only a dream." And then he continued as though he had forgotten my presence: "But my childhood and youth which I spent here in Orchard Hill with Harriet — those years of my life are very real."

They who pride themselves upon being too sophisticated and worldly-wise to indulge in sentiment will laugh with hard laughter at this old man's memories. They will say that Antonio Latour's story is sentimental bosh.

Well, of this I am convinced: All normal men and women who have truly lived do have such emotional memories. And I believe, too, that if the truth were known, the heart experiences which these world-hardened critics so carefully hide are the dearest treasures of their years.

As for what are termed the realities of life — do not fear. Before Antonio Latour's story is finished you shall hear enough of betrayals, and robberies, and murders, and tragic death.

CHAPTER 2
Love in the Bud

THE Latour house is on the brow of Orchard Hill, where the higher land upon which the village stands drops steeply down to the valley and the river. A half mile or so away, also overlooking the valley pastures and meadows, stands the old house where Harriet Noel lived.

About midway between the two homes there is one of those pretty half-hidden retreats often seen in a country where hills and valleys meet. In Tony's boyhood this valley land was a pasture—as it is today. Always there is the pleasant smell of grass and flowers and trees and cattle and warm moist earth.

The boy was fishing that Saturday afternoon in Cherry Creek. It was one of those days in late spring when everything is young and bursting with the sap of life.

When the shadows lengthened toward supper-time the boy set out across the pasture for his home—bare feet and legs browned by the sun—rolled-up overalls, calico shirt torn and without buttons—a string of fish in his hand—his fishing pole over his shoulder.

The boy could not have told why, but he was thinking of Harriet when he reached the little retreat at the foot of the hill. Then, suddenly, he saw her gathering the violets that grew in the tall grass.

Then, as he watched her, so unaware that any one was invading her privacy in that little retreat, a feeling he had never known before came over him—an awakening. For what seemed to him a long time he stood there, wondering at this new and strange emotion.

He had forgotten his purpose to rush upon her with a yell, but advanced slowly and with an elaborate effort to appear casual said, "Hello."

She smiled, her cheeks flushed, and her eyes told him she was glad he had come.

"Hello."

And there they stood; the girl pretending an absorbing interest in the violets she held; the boy, for the first time in his life, painfully aware of dirt-stained hands and legs and face, and unable to speak a word.

At last she broke the embarrassing silence. "Been fishin'?"

"Uh huh." He held up his string of fish for her approval.

The girl's voice thrilled with admiration. "Oh, did you catch all those? How do you ever do it?"

A warm glow spread all through the boy; inside and out he tingled with rapture.

Late that night when his parents were sound asleep, the boy stole out of his bedroom window and followed the path to the house where the girl lived. For an hour he stood under the stars, watching the square of light which was the window of her room. Old Tony laughs now when he says: "I did not know until long afterward that it was the window of the old housekeeper's room, and, that Harriet's room was on the other side of the house."

The paths which led from the two homes on the brow of the hill to their secluded nook were deeply worn during the years which followed.

All the life of their native village the boy and girl lived with their village mates. And always their young hearts were warmed by the enduring glow of that first awakening. They did not speak of it—boys and girls do not usually—but they knew.

During their last year in public school they were chosen for the leading parts in an amateur play and made their first appearance together on the stage. They met often in that little retreat between their homes to rehearse, and named the place their theater. No other member of the company was ever invited to meet them there.

Harriet's acting in the play was the talk of the village. But many of the villagers shook their heads in grave concern. To their simple country minds it might be all right for a boy or girl to appear in a school play or a church cantata but in the eyes of Orchard Hill an actor ranked but little higher than a bartender, while an actress was an unprincipled hussy.

Old Tony says, "I remember how shocked I was when Harriet first confided to me her ambition to become an actress. At that age I had never questioned Orchard Hill's judgment of moral issues. My parents, staunch pillars in the church, destined me for the ministry. That Harriet should deliberately propose to walk so far from the established paths of righteousness was a severe blow upon those Orchard Hill standards."

The two young people entered Orchard Hill Academy in the same class and during the four years of their Academy life were leaders in all the activities of the Dramatic Club of the school. And while Harriet dreamed of a career on the stage and read plays innumerable, she grew into womanhood with a personality distinctive and beautiful.

Considering her unusual freedom of speech and manner together with her gift for acting, and with Orchard Hill's settled conviction that professional actors were a bad lot, it is no wonder that there were predictions that she would come to no good end. For her father's sake she was not exactly ostracized, but for any boy or girl to be too intimate with her was to be placed under surveillance by the watchful guardians of the community's morals.

Young Antonio's parents, naturally, were not blind to their only son's interest in this girl whose name was so frequently on the tongues of the neighborhood gossips. In their eyes, even though by any chance Harriet Noel escaped the moral ruin of a stage career, she could scarcely be looked upon as the ideal wife for a clergyman, I suspect, too. Tony had dreamed about a stage career for Harriet. But about his love for Harriet there was no doubt. Nor was there any doubt in his mind as to what the answer would be when the time came for him to ask her to be his wife.

BILL ASKS FUNDS TO COMPLETE BUILDING

Ohio House Gets Measure Requesting $600.000 for State Edifice.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 2—The first move to provide the additional appropriations which a senate investigating committee found would be necessary to complete the new state office building had been made in the house today with introduction of a bill setting aside $600,000 for that purpose.

The bill was offered by Representative L. P. Mooney, Republican, chairman of the house finance committee. The money it appropriates is in addition to the $5,188,000 derived from a .2 mill levy which the vote authorized for the new structure.

Members of the office building commission told the senate investigating committee that an extra $800,000 would be necessary but the house body pared the estimate down to $600,000. The reason the commission exceeded the original appropriation in planning the new edifice, was that it had been advised by the last administration it would have nearly $6,000,000 to spend.

It developed, however, that the .2 mill levy yielded only $188,000 more than $5,000,000 which the legislature had in mind when it sanctioned the new building.

ACCUSE GOVERNOR IN LOSS OF FUNDS

More Impeachment Articles Filed Against Tennessee Executive.

By The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 2—Blame for the depositing of millions of state funds in the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary of Caldwell & Co., investment banking house, both of which are now defunct, was laid at the door of Governor Henry H. Horton in one of seven additional articles of impeachment against him which were reported to the Tennessee house of representatives today.

The first article of impeachment, reported to the house by its committee last week, charged Governor Horton conspired with Rogers Caldwell, financier, and Colonel Luke Lea, newspaper publisher and politician, to influence governmental affairs for their personal gain in exchange for their political support.

Caldwell was president of Caldwell & Co. and the Bank of Tennessee.

Professor's Aid Would Make New Balloon Trip

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, June 2—Charles Kipfer, who was Prof. August Piccard's companion on a balloon flight to the stratosphere, wants to try it again and believes that with a specially constructed balloon he could go as high as 100,000 feet. He and Prof. Piccard reached 52,500 feet.

"I am convinced," said Kipfer "that a balloon bag with many gas chambers, each regulated from the gondola by a separate valve, would rise as high as 100,000 feet, without danger, or even hardships to the occupants."

The government will lose about $300,000 in title taxes by its refusal to grant titles. Members of the aristocracy may use their titles privately but must sign their names to legal documents. About 2,600 aristocrats are affected by this move.

VOTING PLACES CUT IN MORROW COUNTY

Elimination of Eight Precincts Will Save $1,500 Annually; Board Sets Hearing Date.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, June 2—Eight of 33 voting precincts in Morrow county have been eliminated by the board of elections.

The move is made, Charles Sautter, chairman of the board says, to conform with the request of Secretary of State Clarence Brown that all precincts be combined where possible in order to facilitate the compilation of returns. A second reason of extreme importance is the saving effected for the county in election expenses. This saving will amount to approximately $1,500 a year.

The board, of which Charles Sautter of Franklin township, E. R. Allworth of Harmony township, Fred Corwin of Franklin township, Elmer Goodrich of Washington township and J. G. Mills of Cardington, clerk, are members, passed a resolution setting July 1 for a public hearing on the combinations. South Bloomfield and the Sparta precincts will be combined as the vote in South Bloomfield, Canaan North and Canaan South precincts will be combined into one.

At Cardington the three districts will be combined and then divided into two which will probably be known as Cardington east and Cardington west with the dividing line at Marion street. Congress north and Congress south will be combined into one precinct. Franklin east and Franklin west will form the fifth combination. Lincoln east and Lincoln west will be combined. Perry No. 1 and Perry No. 2 forms the seventh combination and Washington north and Washington south completes the eight changes.

WHEN a team goes into sixth inning of a seven inning ball game with a four run lead and one man of the opposing side out most persons are filling to concede the ball game is just about over as far as the trailing team is concerned. However, these same persons will probably be able to find about nine ball players at St. Paul's Lutheran church who will emphatically disagree with this argument.

A Neat Rally

St. Paul was in just such a predicament in the sixth frame of its ball game with the United Brethren yesterday. One man was out, two men were on and Bob Tuttle, who previously had been up twice and had failed to hit came to the plate. And right there, as far as St. Paul is concerned, the ball game ended.

A beautifully timed swing on a low ball and Tuttle banged out a triple that fairly screeched over the heads of the infielders into deep center. This brought in two runs, only half enough to tie the score but it started the rally that brought victory to the United Brethren and raised them to a first division post in the No. 2 Sunday school league.

Don Lindsey hurled a nice game for the losers, but his fatal error in tossing a low ball to Tuttle paved the way for the defeat. Infield errors that followed the Tuttle triple aided in St. Paul's downfall.

Seniors Assume Lead

The Christian Seniors moved into the league leadership by handing their fellow Sunday school team a 5 to 2 beating. The defeat shoved the No. 1 nine from the leadership to a four-way tie for third place. The Seniors hopped onto the losers starting hurler, Clark, for a trio of runs in the first inning and that was enough to win the ball game. Rank relieved Clark before the inning was over but the damage was done. Rank allowed two more runs to cross the plate in the third inning but managed to weather the storm.

The First Presbyterian batters' habit of hitting for extra bases stood them in good stead yesterday and did a lot to gain for them their second victory of the season over the Wesley M. E. nine. The final score was 8 to 2. The winners turned in one double, three triples and one homer during the seven innings.

Wesley scored two runs in the fourth frame to take the lead but the Presbyterians promptly tied it up and went ahead in the fifth.

Forest Lawn Presbyterian elevated itself to a share in the four way tie for third place in the standings by handing First Reformed a 6 to 2 beating. First Reformed dropped to next the last place in the league by the defeat, its second in the three games this season.

The winners bunched their hits in the third, fifth and seventh frames to score two runs in each. First Reformed chased one run across in both the fifth and sixth.

WES FESLER SIGNS CONTRACT TO PLAY WITH RED BIRD NINE

Ohio State Star Gets First Chance in Professional Sports.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 2—Wesley Fesler will join the ranks of professional baseball after he graduates from Ohio State university.

The all American football end all-western conference basketball star signed a contract with the Columbus American Association club yesterday and will report next Monday.

Larry Mac Phail, president of the Red Birds declined to divulge the salary but said the agreement called for a one-year tryout with the stipulation he would not be farmed out to another club of lower classification than the American Association.

Fesler, a right-hander who plays first and second and the outfield, closed his collegiate career last Saturday when Ohio State defeated Navy at Annapolis. In that game he made three hits in six times at bat. He graduates next week.

Manager Harry Leibold of the Red Birds indicated he would give Fesler his first tryout in the outfield.

Until recently Fesler had planned a business career but decided first to try his ability in professional sports. He told friends his future course would be determined during the period of his contract. Fesler twice was named an all-American football end and won all-conference honors as guard, center and forward in basketball.

BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES IN INTERSECTIONAL INVASIONS TODAY

Interest Centers in Giants-Cardinal Series Cleveland Meets Red Sox.

BY GAYLE GALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

After a day's hiatus, in which only one game escaped the rain and the general movement of clubs east and west, intersectional warfare breaks out on both major league fronts today.

Four western members of the American league, invading the Atlantic seaboard for the first time this year, have scant prospects of success against the powerful Philadelphia-Washington-New York combine. The National league's eastern contingent, on the other hand, opens in the west with more concerted strength than it has boasted in several seasons.

Interest centers at St. Louis, where the New York Giants engage the St. Louis Cardinals. A game and a half ahead of the Giants now, Gabby Street's Red Birds face an opportunity to take a commanding lead.

The Brooklyn Robins, flushed with a four-game winning streak, engage the third place Chicago Cubs, who likewise have captured four in a row. The Boston Braves open at Pittsburgh and the Phillies meet the luckless Cincinnati Reds.

To the Chicago White Sox falls the thankless task of meeting the fast-traveling Philadelphia Athletics in their own park. The St. Louis Browns invade Yankee stadium, the Detroit Tigers face Washington and the Cleveland Indians meet the Boston Red Sox to round out the American league menu.

Their ability to take all extra-inning decisions again stood the Cardinals in good stead yesterday as they made ready for the Giants by nosing out the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 5, in 12 innings. It marked the fifth time the Birds have been forced beyond the regulation nine innings this year and the fifth time they have won.

Vernon Wins Easily in Scholastic League Game

Vernon Heights softball team walked all over Mark street yesterday in a scholastic league game, winning 32 to 5. Scores of other games in the league were as follows: St. Mary No. 2, 8, Oak 5; Central No. 3, 7, North Main 3 and North State 14, Greenwood 6.

Batteries for the games were: Vernon, Wetterauer and Winters; Mark, Price and Bristley; North State, Millsor and Millsor; Greenwood, Ruppart and Waiser; St Mary, Robbins and Truka; Oak, Predmore and VanScoy; Central, Court and Yonkam and North Main, Hogan and Ream.

RICHWOOD BEATS ESSEX

Richwood's baseball team was defeated Sunday afternoon by Essex in a well-played game 6 to 5. Both teams are members of the Tri-county baseball league. Batteries for the game were: Richwood, Thompson and Pierce; Essex, Wasserbeck and Lidley.

FAVORITES TODAY

Two of the leading teams of the No. 1 Sunday school league will clash today on the Lincoln park diamond. One is unbeaten and the other has dropped one game. They are St. Mary, who lost one start to Trinity Baptist and Calvary, who as yet has not been defeated. This should be the best game of the four scheduled today. Calvary should win by a close score.

Epworth No. 1 will meet Lee street and the latter will win unless John Clark gets more out of his team than he has gotten in the last three starts. Trinity Baptist will play Epworth Bishops and should add another victory to its list while the Lutherans will meet Epworth Seniors with the Seniors in the favored role.

THRONGS BEGIN TREK TO SCENE OF DERBY

1,000,000 Persons Expected To Watch 148th Renewal of English Race.

By The Associated Press

EPSOM, Eng., June 2—From Whitechapel to Mayfair, from countryside and village, England's countless thousands began their annual trek to this birthplace of English racing today for the one hundred forty-eighth renewal of the "darby" tomorrow.

While stablemen and trainers bent to their tasks of bringing the 29 remaining eligible candidates around to top form, railroad trains, automobiles, ancient horse-drawn carriage, aristocratic four-in-hands, airplanes and busses dumped their passengers into this quaint little village.

Camped over the downs were the gypsies—without which the derby would lose much of its color.

While thousands wended their way toward the historic course, the turf world at large anxiously awaited the flashing of the winner, to the holders of tickets on the winner and the sweepstakes, the result means a fortune. The division of the Irish sweepstakes this year provides for distribution of nearly $10,000,000.

Estimators of the derby attendance say between 750,000 and 1,000,000 persons may see the race.

Pirates Can't Connect, So Ens Tries New Lineup

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, June 2—Thoroughly disgusted with the Pirates inability to hit, Manager Jewel Ens fore up the batting order today and wrote a new one.

The shake-up sends another regular to the bench. First baseman Gus Suhr is to watch play from the dugout along with shortstop Tommy Thevenow, when left handed pitching is encountered. Paul Waner is to play first base. Fred Bennett is to be given a chance in right field and Grantham is to drop to sixth place in the batting list.

9 PROMINENT PILOTS TO OPEN SHORT SHIP RACING SEASON HERE

Numerous Other Well-Known Drivers To Come Here After Greenville Meeting.

At least nine of the better known drivers of the Ohio Short Ship racing association will inaugurate their summer of racing at the Marion meeting which is scheduled to get under way next Tuesday at fairground track. Besides this array of driving talent which will be piloting mounts for the first time this summer their will be a large number of drivers here who drove last week at the Urbana, Ohio, meeting and who are driving this week at Granville, Ohio.

Among the drivers who will open the 1931 season on the Marion oval are William McMillen, A. T. Morrison, "Art" Blackwell, George Bennett, "Doc" Vail, Mat Ray, S. F. Palin, Gabe Cartnal, and "Dave" Kelly. H. M. "Doc" Parshall, one of the foremost drivers of the country, will also be on hand for the local meet. Parshall is driving this week at Greenville. Parshall was the leading race winner for 1930 and S. F. Palin was the largest money winner. Palin confined his driving last year for the most part to Grand Circuit tracks while Parshall drove in all classes of competition.

Reservations for stall room at the fairground oval are continuing to come at a rapid rate and officials predict that all available space will be occupied when the time rolls around for the opening event on Tuesday.

MacDonald Shoots 71 in British Open Tourney

By The Associated Press

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, June 2—Shooting spectacular golf all the way, MacDonald Smith, veteran New York professional, scored a 71 over Carnoustie's gruelling course in the second qualifying round of the British open championship today for a 36 hole total of 141.

Smith, who led the field in the first 18 holes of qualifying play yesterday with a fine 70 over the barry course, made few mistakes today. He needed 37 on the first nine largely because of a six on the sixth hole but other than that he was in little trouble. His putting especially was deadly.

Gentlemen:

I welcome this opportunity to put on record the benefits I have enjoyed from using ZZZ tablets purchased at your drugstore.

About three years ago last September, my physician advised me that my complication of gall, liver and appendix ailments had reached a point that my only hope for recovery rested with the success of a serious abdominal operation. His examinations showed my physical condition to be such that the hope of a successful operation appeared extremely doubtful.

With this discouraging prospect before me, I tried taking ZZZ tablets and have continued them until this time. I feel that I am completely cured of all my gall and liver ailments and am ready to verify this letter at any time and recommend your remedy to any who may inquire.

Yours very truly,
(Signed)
Mrs. J. W. Tucker,
Route 2.

Mrs. Tucker is not alone in her experience with ZZZ tablets. We have many customers willing to testify to their excellent qualities in cleaning and stimulating a sluggish or ailing liver and gall bladder. One month's treatment in a $3.75 box.

GRAINS SHOW GENERAL GAIN

Unexpected Liverpool Upturns Aid Prices on Chicago Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 2—Unexpected upturns in Liverpool wheat quotations and reported anxiety aboard regarding crop prospects in Canada led early today to higher prices here for grains. There were also official advices that the Canadian government would absorb 5 cents a bushel on the cost of wheat exported. Opening ⅛@½ cent higher, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started unchanged to ⅝ up and subsequently showed a general advance.

Monthly unofficial domestic crop summaries proved to be fully as bearish as expected concerning winter wheat production forecasts, but had little market influence, having been apparently discounted beforehand. The summaries averaged 681,000,000 bushels as the 1931 probable yield of domestic winter wheat, compared with the government May forecast of 653,000,000 and with 604,000,000 harvested last year. Average unofficial predictions were for 212,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, against 247,000,000 in 1930, with acreage decreases estimated at 10 to 12 per cent.

Some rain in Canadian drouth districts was reported, but no general moisture relief for the wheat crop. On the other hand, some doubt was expressed as to whether the five cent bounty on wheat exports in Canada would apply to wheat already on hand or only to wheat raised this year. A bullish factor indicated by domestic wheat crop reports was that owing to heavy growth of straw without corresponding root development the harvest of winter wheat would be more than usually dependent upon weather in the filling period. Corn and oats followed wheat.

Scarcity of offerings hoisted the provisions market.

State Examiner Reports on City Office Audit

George T. Dustman Lists Findings of $547 in Check of Municipal Records; Recommends Change in Tax Funds and Check on Street Lights.

Separation into two funds, of money received from the gasoline tax and the auto license tax, and a more careful check of the city lights, were among recommendations made by George T. Dustman, state examiner, following an examination of the city books last year a copy of which has been received by Mayor L. Don Jones and City Auditor Landes. The report lists findings for recovery of $547.61.

The report covers a period from July 11, 1929, to October 15, 1930, a portion of which time was under the previous administration.

Makes Findings

Findings for adjustment and not recovery were brought against the service department for $935.15 of gasoline tax and auto license money which the examiner charges was used for purposes other than that provided by law. The money, according to the examiner, was used for flushing sewers purchasing hose with which to flush sewers, buying salt to place on the street and for a pump.

The report also suggests that the city obtain a complete list of all street lights in the city instead of depending upon the report of the electric light company.

A number of minor findings were also brought against the service department for small accounts which had through error been paid twice.

Commends Tobin

Relief Commissioner Tobin was commended by the examiner for his efficiency in conducting the relief the past year. "Tobin has been exceedingly valuable to the city during the present economic condition of the country," reads the report.

City Auditor Landes was also commended by the examiner for the manner in which the books of the auditing department were kept. "The books for the most part are neatly and accurately kept," he said.

The examiner took exceptions to the depositing of police and firemen pension funds in building and loan companies. The law specifies banks, the examiner declares, and under the laws of the state, building and loan companies are not banks. He recommends that the money be placed in banks in order to receive the benefit of the depository bond.

A codification of all city ordinances was recommended by the examiner, who suggested that this be done when the necessary funds are available. No attempt to codify the ordinances has been made in the last 15 years.

A recommendation that the position of clerk to the city solicitor be created, was made in the report.

NORRIS STORY ON PALACE SCREEN

Charles G. Norris famous novel "Seed," has been screened and will show at the Palace Thursday and Friday. John Boles, Genevieve Tobin, Lois Wilson, Raymond Hackett and Zasu Pitts are some of the recognized actors and actresses who appear.

The novel was gripping. The theme, "How great is mother love and just how great is the bond between a mother and her children," provided splendid reading.

Hundreds of twins thronged the studio where the picture was in production, before the casting directors found pairs of twin boys who could be used at different parts of the picture and still bear enough resemblance to one another to insure their being accepted by audiences as the same boys in the 10 years covered by the story.
